

Studio Directors Norrköping, Eskilstuna and Piteå

Geek who wants to make a difference?

Innovating nerd with leader ambitions?

Researcher who wants to turn knowledge into utility?

If one of the descriptions fits you, maybe you should read the rest of this ad.

Interactive Institute Swedish ICT has a long track-record within the field of interaction design and user experience, from games and sound design to 3D-visualizations and open innovation, often with an artistic approach.

We work in local studios all across Sweden.

As the next step in our exciting development, we are currently looking for a number of sharp, energetic colleagues, for the following positions:

- Studio Director, Piteå (sound design)
- Studio Director, Eskilstuna (energy design)
- Studio Director, Norrköping (visualization)

The positions are placed on a management level, with budget- and staff responsibility and project management. You bring an inclusive, inspiring leadership and a solid experience from leading change within academia or the research world.

Merits: Expertise within research area, research funding experience, hands-on experience from sales- and marketing.

The Institute has multicultural values and strives for gender balance, we would therefore also like to see female applicants and applicants from non-European cultures.

Interactive Institute Swedish ICT is an experimental IT and design research institute, dedicated to the creation of ground-breaking user experiences. We have approximately 55 employees in 8 cities: Stockholm, Piteå, Umeå, Karlstad, Eskilstuna, Uppsala, Norrköping and Gothenburg – and HQ in Stockholm (Kista).

We are a non-profit distributing organization, part of Swedish ICT and Research Institutes of Sweden, Rise. Learn more: www.tii.se
